The Winter Foundation Course

Do you work in corporate communication or a related field? Our five-day Winter Course is an excellent opportunity to deepen and expand your knowledge of corporate communication. This course incorporates current thinking and developments from both the academic and practitioner worlds. It combines a comprehensive theoretical foundation with numerous practical guidelines and insights that apply in your day-to-day work and in strategic and tactical communication decisions.

Throughout the course, you will:

- gain an in-depth view of the latest developments, tools, and practical and academic insights into the fundamental key issues of corporate communication, such as organisational identity, corporate branding, and strategic reputation management

- explore the development of corporate communication strategies and the implementation of communication programmes and campaigns
- be able to put into practice what you have learned and help your organisation optimise its communications based on academic insights and best practices
- contribute to increasing business value through effective communication strategies.

In the foundation course, you will learn through a combination of lectures, interactive sessions, workshops and case studies, providing an engaging and well-rounded learning experience.

For whom

This course is designed for the following individuals:

Communication Professionals: This course is explicitly beneficial for communication professionals who are looking to deepen their knowledge of corporate communication. It offers a valuable opportunity for them to expand their skills and understanding in the field.

General Managers and Executives: General managers and executives will find this course advantageous as well. It equips them with insights into corporate communication that can be vital for making strategic decisions and optimising communication within their organisations.

Consultants: If you work as a consultant in the field of communication, this course is a valuable resource. It will help you enhance your expertise, stay updated on the latest developments, and provide more informed and effective advice to your clients.

In summary, the course caters to a broad audience of communication professionals, managers, executives, and consultants, and it encourages a collaborative learning environment by bringing together a diverse group of professionals from various sectors, including the public and private sectors, NGOs, and consultancies. This diversity ensures a rich learning experience, allowing participants to benefit from the insights and experiences of peers in different fields.

Participants for this course are advised to hold at least a Bachelor degree and at least five years of work experience.

Learning objectives and your learning experience

In this course, you will:

explore the theoretical foundations of corporate communication, such as identity, branding, reputation management and strategic communication apply theoretical frameworks to diagnose and describe the identity of your organisation

develop an identity-led communication strategy and positioning for your organisation acquire a deep understanding of the power of brands for customers and organisations learn how a firm's brand portfolio (including both product and corporate brands) can be leveraged for growth reflect on how internal and external processes affect corporate reputation and brand equity in the long-term apply tools to systematise, reflect upon and describe communication objectives aligned to corporate goals understand the concept of agility, its drivers, and its relevance for corporate communication reflect on the challenges and opportunities of agility for communication professionals.

Your learning experience

The course creates an environment based on experiential learning, which will help you integrate the learning objectives. The course combines the following learning tools:

- lectures that provide the basic theoretical frameworks to approach every topic, and additional readings to further develop each course topic
- case studies to help students discuss each topic in depth and better understand how to practice the theoretical concepts
- guest speakers who transfer part of their knowledge through their personal experiences
- in-class discussions which encourage active engagement and sharing of experiences.

You will receive a reader consisting of various articles and cases, which you can use as input for the final assignment, and as a reference after the course.

Assessment for this masterclass is based on an individual assignment. Further details will be discussed during the final session of the course.

Experiences from participants

"I highly recommend the Winter Foundation Course. It offers a deep dive into the tools for managing corporate communication. The course content is well-organised, and the professors are excellent. Even in the online format, there's a good amount of interaction."

– Clemence Benamar – Legouy, EUMETSAT

"The Winter Foundation Course in Corporate Communication was an exceptionally high-level training. We were handed the building blocks we need to organise professional corporate communications. The academic guest lecturers and business practitioners were inspiring. The intensive programme made me aware of the importance of the communications profession. I can apply the knowledge I gained in my daily work."

– Jan Denys, Randstad Group

"As a communications professional, one never stops learning. Our field is in a constant state of flux. In the foundation course, you not only revisit the fundamentals of corporate communication but also delve into the latest developments in our field. Theory and practice are closely intertwined in this course. It was very valuable for me to connect with other professionals and learn from one another."

– Karin Ooms, KLM
